Taing Meng Guech, Clare

is 17 from Phnom Penh, Cambodia. She is the oldest of 2 children. Diligent and determine, to do well for her GCE 'O' Level

Speaking from my own experience, the school system here in Singapore is very different from that of Cambodia. I find that Singapore has a higher level of education compared to Cambodia. There is a wider variety of subjects offered and different paths a student can take depending on their own ability and goals. In contrast, Cambodia has a much stricter school system where there is no room to express the students' individual talent. Moreover, there is really only one way or path that a student can take in pursuit of their education.

The method of teaching is also different in the sense that Singapore students are able to apply what they learn through understanding. While in Cambodia, they focus on teaching the students to memorise instead of understanding it and applying it. Initially I found it difficult to adjust to life in Zesprion. Now I have learned to appreciate the method of teaching here because it has given me a clearer understanding of the topics and I am now able to apply what i have learnt.

Value-In-Action

Zesprion believes that every person is capable of giving and sharing love. At Zesprion, we are very much involved in charitable activities such as helping out at social kitchen (Willing Hearts) or Push a Wheelchair programmes.

Our 'O' Level students helped out at Willing Hearts on 15 March 2018, where they helped to prepare meals for the underprivileged. The students made friends with other volunteers and enjoyed themselves.

Laopakdee Yanist, Maki

Why Did I Come back to Zesprion?

Last year I came to Zesprion to study for four weeks. I have come back here because I want to go to a government school and I think that Zesprion teachers teach me well so that I can pass the government schools' exam, AEIS.

Ms Chee and Ms Cynthia are my English teachers. Each day, Ms Chee teaches for about three hours. She teaches me very well. I can understand most of the things that she has taught me. Ms Cynthia teaches me how to write a good composition. She teaches me how to use similes and to describe characters.

Mdm Yeo is my Math teacher. She teaches for two hours each day. Every class that she teaches, she will write all the things that need to be finished on the board so that we know what we need to do. She will explain everything that others and I don't understand.

My friends here are all kind. We talk and play together. If we don't understand anything, we will ask each other how to solve it. We have never argue since we have known each other.

Most of the people in Zesprion are very kind. The teachers teach well. Friends are all kind. I have confidence that coming here to learn again will help me pass the AEIS.
